Stephen Mould, Head of Sotheby's Wine, Europe, commented: "The fantastic sale result for 'The Treasured Collection of a Connoisseur' is testimony to both the outstanding quality of the owner's wine and a reflection of his exquisite taste. The depth and breadth of the collection were breathtaking, resulting in 78% of lots selling above the high estimate. Buyers came from 21 different countries and they competed energetically for the most coveted lots, with a high proportion selling to telephone bidders and 35% to online bidders. It is difficult to single out highlights, as there were so many, but special mention should be made of the two lots of Montrachet which were the highest sold lots in the sale. All the large formats were snapped up including no less than 35 6-litre Imperials of Bordeaux from the outstanding 1982 vintage, the highest price going to Château Lafleur 1982 at £25,850. We now look forward to our next single owner sale in London on 30 November, 'A Private Continental Collection.'"
